AUSTRALIAN BOTANIC GARDEN MOUNT ANNAN

The Australian Botanic Garden Mount Annan

Feed your curiosity in the Botanic Gardens of Sydney, the meeting places of people and plants, science and seasons, and nature and nurture.

The Australian Botanic Garden offers a unique and enchanting location that beautifully intertwines natural splendour with scientific significance. Nestled in the heart of New South Wales, this sprawling 416-hectare garden is a living testament to Australia's diverse flora and a hub of scientific research and conservation.

The Australian Botanic Garden is not just a beautiful venue; it's also a centre for botanical research and conservation efforts. The garden's dedicated scientists work tirelessly to study and preserve Australia's unique plant species, ensuring their survival for future generations. By choosing this venue for your event, you contribute to the vital work of protecting and understanding our natural heritage.

PlantBank is the award-winning home of plant conservation research, germplasm collection and storage in New South Wales. Our seed and tissue culture collections provide an insurance policy against extinction of native plants in the wild.

Your event day will be enriched by the knowledge that it takes place in a location devoted to the celebration and preservation of Australia's botanical wonders.

Discover. Learn. Enjoy.
